Casualties Elsewhere.

In most of the cities as large as Washington hundreds of fingers are blown off every Fourth of July by giant crackers and dynamite bombs exploding prematurely or in the hands of children, and in a number of cases those of their parents or big brothers. While loading cannon or making fuses to explode the same, hundreds of children have had their faces burned with powder, and the fine grains have sunk so deep into the flesh that they carried the black spots of the powder marks for ilfe. Therefore, a ban has been placed upon all such explosives.

Revolvers were used a great deal in celebration of the Fourth until a few years ago, when accidents of a serious occurred.
